

CHS NEWSLETTER

DECEMBER 2023

DECEMBER ACTIVITIES

Mr. Teichert checks his curriculum while supervising his PE class.

Math students learn about the application of math in measuring knots through a paper airplane exercise.

To enhance their studies, Mr. Linford occasionally takes his Spanish classes to the kitchen to cook cultural dishes such as fajitas.

Left and bottom left: The senior capstone class helps a recently widowed member of the community hang Christmas lights.

Below: Students give Bob (the science class's pet bearded dragon) some love.

Drake Plowman, a CHS senior, takes a shot over a Rich Rebel defender.

The cheer team rallies the wrestlers.

WINTER SPORTS

Cokeville HS athletes are in the midst of the winter season of cheer, girls basketball, boys basketball, and boys wrestling.

Cokeville wrestlers support their teammates at the Kemmerer Tournament.

The girls battle for ball control against the Rich Rebels.

CHRISTMAS CONCERT

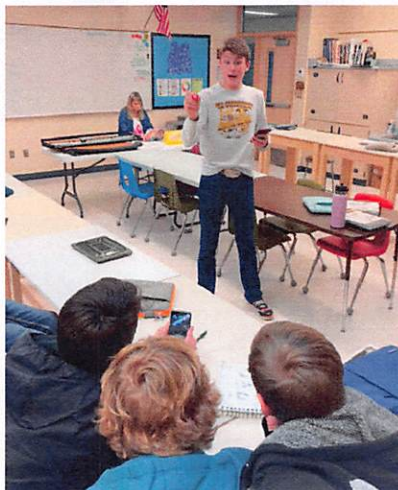

Mr. Burgoyne led the CHS Music Department in a successful Christmas concert showcasing the JH band, the JH choir, the HS symphonic band, the HS mixed choir, and the show choir, Celebration. All groups performed Christmastime favorites. The final number, performed by Celebration, the HS Choir, and the JH Choir, was a powerful rendition of "Hark the Herald Angels Sing" and left the audience excited for Christmas.

Not pictured: Outside the auditorium, art teacher Sadie Payne set up a display highlighting her students' artwork.

To the right: Art students play a virtual drawing game in anticipation of the break.

To the left: Journalism students gather around a laptop before the Christmas assembly.

READING PARTY

To encourage students to read outside of school, the CHS Library hosted a reading contest and a party, organized by Mrs. Pauni, for any student who read six hours on their own time. The reading party was a baking contest similar to Nailed It, where students tried to recreate a professional cake.

Mrs. Pauni and several of her alumni siblings judge the cakes

Students help Mrs. Pauni set up

Needless to say, students had lots of fun being creative and competing.

The winners (left and lower right) each received a $25 Amazon gift card.

Left: Students have fun with fondant and food color while racing against the clock.

CHRISTMAS ACTIVITIES

One of CHS's Christmas traditions is Santa Letters. Students submit Santa Letters throughout the month, and the student council presidency delivers. This year, an alumni stepped in as Santa and play-fought the Grinch on a letter request. Other letter requests were for things like a husband, a kiss from a girl, or a car, and these students received a Ken doll, a Hershey's chocolate kiss, or a Hot Wheels toy car. Others asked for candy and received it without a cheeky substitute.

Santa Letters

Before Christmas break, students and faculty watched The Polar Express in the auditorium.